MODULE 1

FAITH AND REVELATION
(8 sessions)

Held on Tuesdays from 8pm-10pm

“Theological understanding is not a theory or invention, something wafted into existence by the theologian’s magic wand. It names a dimension of the life of faith itself, the understanding required of faith as it exists in various life contexts...” - Edward Farley.

This course invites the student to develop a methodological understanding of the praxis of theological reflection considering the relation of revelation, tradition, faith, reason and authority.
